

NEW PARTNERS IN KRW LAW

We are pleased to announce the appointment of Roise Fitzpatrick and Setanta Marley as new partners in KRW LAW. Each of them have loyally promoted the firms best interests ever since joining us from Law School and more recently as hard working Associates. With his well known reputation as a specialist Troubles - related litigator, Setanta will head up our specialist Conflict Litigation Dept. Roise equally has a highly respected profile as a leading Criminal Defence practitioner and will lead our Summary Criminal Law Dept.

Speaking on the announcement one of the founding partners, Kevin Winters said, “I think this sends a very positive message out to the wider legal and business community at a time when many firms in the private sector face ever more demands in terms of increasing costs and pressure on resources. The appointments are an endorsement of the rapid growth of the practice particularly over the last 5 years and testament to the commitment shown by Roise and Setanta to KRW. The dividends for the firm are obvious but most importantly it’s our clients who will be the major beneficiaries. This is probably one of the most important business decisions the firm has made in the last 10 years. It underpins a reciprocal loyalty, a very important commodity in the business of legal practice. We are very pleased indeed to have two more colleagues as partners contributing to the continued evolution of KRW LAW as one of Ireland and The UKs leading Human Rights Law Firms. You can’t aspire to that without the right people at the helm. In these 2 appointments we certainly have that.”

Commenting on the respective elevations Setanta Marley said,

“I look forward to the many battles lying ahead especially at this challenging time with the Governments drive to shut down all Conflict - related legal agitation. I like to think being a partner in KRW makes me very well placed to lead the charge in fighting for justice for so many victims.”

Roise Fitzpatrick added, “It’s a privilege to become a partner in KRW. I’m looking forward to the many challenges ahead and to be at centre of developing our ever increasing specialisation in criminal practice.” ENDS
